

Curtain Goes Up Tonight For Premiere Of "Rope"

Moyse Hall At 8:15 — Final Dress Rehearsal Held Last Night — Thrills, Suspense And Satire Promised — Scenery Modernistic — Motif Of Play Is Murder

EVERYTHING is in readiness for the opening performance of "Rope" in Moyse Hall tonight. The curtain rises at 8:15 on a play that has seen some six weeks of intense preparation and rehearsal, and an entertaining evening should be in store for the first-nighters.

Thrills, suspense, eerie moments, interlarded with keen satiric shafts and naive humor promise to sustain the interest from start to finish. The results of assiduous rehearsing was quite evident last night, when the cast went through the play with well-nigh flawless precision, showing a keen grasp of the entire situation.

Scenery Modernistic
The set is modernistic in tone, focused almost entirely about the chest in the foreground—the chest that contains the earthly remains of the murdered Ronald Kentley. There is a certain air of subdued luxury about the apartment of the two killers, Brandon and Granillo, and the furnishings and other properties are in harmony with the surroundings.

The play itself is concerned with the attempt to commit a "passionless, motiveless, flawless and clueless murder, a bloodless and noiseless murder—an immaculate murder." Brandon and Granillo, therefore, murder a college chum of theirs, hide the body in a chest in their apartment, and then invite some relatives and friends of the victim to have dinner over that very chest. Obviously, from such a motif, situations replete with suspense and interest are sure to arise.

Character Studies
Patrick Hamilton, the author of the play, has made intriguing character studies in this drama. There is the outwardly cool and calculating Brandon, who along with Granillo, has, in a moment of sheer nerve, committed the murder. There is the emotional Spaniard Granillo, who loses his nerve right after the deed has been committed, and very gradually sinks into an utterly maudlin state.

Rupert Cadell, the poet-philosopher turns another interesting character. His penetrating observations, tinged with the satire of a man who has been through the mill stands out in decided contrast to the light headed and vivacious Lella Arden and equally unopinionated Kenneth Raglan. Sir Johnstone Kentley, the victim's father, and rabid bibliophile, and his reticent sister likewise form a counterpoise to the frivolous couple.

Conservatorium To Hold First Concert

String Orchestra Will Perform Tonight At R.V.C.

Tonight at 8:30 the Conservatorium String Orchestra will present its first concert of the season in the Royal Victoria College. In all, thirty-four musicians will perform under the direction of R. de H. Tupper, secretary of the Faculty of Music. The program will be both large and varied, containing works from the classic period down to the present era. A suite of Old English pieces, arranged by the conductor will be featured on the program.

The concert is open to both students and members of the staff, to whom Mr. Tupper extended a special invitation to be present. As this is the only appearance of the string orchestra for the present season, a large audience is expected. At a future concert, the wind instruments will be added, making this Conservatorium group a full symphony orchestra.

The program will include the following items: 1. Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, Mozart. 2. Concerto Grosso in A major, Vivaldi (Solo violins: Alexander Brott and Noel Brunet). 3. Largo e mesto, Elgar. 4. Concerto in D minor for piano and strings (1st movement), Bach (Solo pianoforte, Esther Wayland). 5. Suite of Old English Pieces, arranged by R. de H. Tupper.

Writing in the program notes about the Mozart composition, Mr. Tupper states that "Among the numerous instrumental works of Mozart, there is a branch of composition lying midway (continued on page four)

Santa Claus Will Attend Union Dance On Friday

RUMOURS emanating from the inner sanctum of the Union yesterday are to the effect that a familiar and beloved character will be present at the informal dance this Friday evening in the amiable person of Father Christmas. With a little of the proverbial bells and accompanied by his gallant team of reindeer, Santa Claus will in all likelihood be in person at this gala affair, scheduled to follow the Yale-McGill hockey game. Not only will St. Nicholas be there to spread cheer and joviality, he might even distribute gifts from his toy-laden sack.

The plans for this informal dance are practically complete. Difficulties were at first encountered in booking Pere Noel for the occasion, but cables from the North Pole received yesterday have definitely assured the committee in charge that the old grayed hair gentleman will be there with bells on.

The affair, which will be held in the Union Ballroom, will be conducted in cabaret style. There will be individual table service with a special menu supplied by the cafeteria management. Harold Ayres and his Orchestra will supply the music for the occasion. Cabaret entertainers will also be on hand to amuse the dancers.

The decorations will be of a Christmas nature to blend in with the presence of Santa Claus, while the proverbial yuletide will be blowing in the fireplace to spread a warm glow of Yuletide cheer. The couples will find the reading room arranged for sitting out during intermission, with a radio placed there for their convenience.

Mrs. Vaughan has consented to act as patroness for the occasion. Tickets may be obtained for a dollar a couple at the Tuck Shop and in the various faculty buildings.

Outstanding American Social Thinker To Give Addresses

Difficulties Seen In Contemporary Literature Course

Professor Latham Finds Difficulty In Selecting Proper Books

THE necessity of including contemporary works in an Academic course in Literature, and at the same time the difficulties to be encountered in selecting those that will have more than a merely transitory popularity, was emphasized by Professor Latham of the Department of English, at the meeting at the English Literature Society held yesterday afternoon in the Union.

Professor Latham stressed the fact at the opening of his address that most alert people today are interested in what is going on around them, and contemporary literature is always appealing to them. This proclivity is particularly noticeable in a certain class of students who are extreme modernists and thus are constantly at the sword's point with the academicians.

The major difficulty, stated the speaker, is in the choice of authors selected for study in a modern course on literature. How can we select them?

There are two methods of selection. The first is to choose the contemporary authors most widely read. In this category would fall the late Edgar Wallace, Edgar Rice Burroughs, Edgar Guest, and others. But these men have no true literary value and thus would be in reality unsuitable for a contemporary course in Literature. Twenty years ago the most widely read prose writer was Charles Garvie, yet he is unknown today. A hum (continued on page 4)

Newman Club Will Convene On Sunday

The next meeting of the Newman Club will take place on Sunday at 9:45 a.m. in Congress Hall, the program opening with the celebration of mass in the Lady's Chapel of St. Patrick's Church, after which breakfast will be served in Congress Hall.

This is the first time that a second meeting has been held in one month, and from now on this policy of holding two meetings a month will be followed. At the first meeting of the month all business pertaining to the club will be discussed and a guest speaker will address the gathering. On every third Sunday of the month, as next Sunday, a buffet breakfast will be served following mass, after which members may use Congress Hall for an informal gathering.

University's Fame Greatly Enhanced By Late Principal

Corporation Meeting Paid Tribute To Late Sir Arthur Currie

PROFESSOR MOURNED
Death Of Dr. Armstrong Noted — Amendment Of Society Ratified

HE came to us a famous man; he leaves us his fame enhanced, the University glorified. With these words members of the Corporation of McGill paid tribute to the late Sir Arthur Currie, principal and vice-chancellor of the University, at a meeting held yesterday afternoon. He was a wise, kind and winsome man, stated the text of the statement, and his life's purpose is fulfilled. Victory is with him.

Tribute was also paid to the memory of Dr. George E. Armstrong, a graduate of McGill and for many years Professor of Surgery in the University and Surgeon-in-Chief of the Montreal General and Royal Victoria Hospitals. His loss is "most keenly felt" by the University and his country, stated the text.

The change in the constitution of the Students' Society whereby the semi-annual and annual meetings of that body have been abolished, was ratified by the meeting. The Department of Physical Education submitted a brief report showing that 1,334 students had been examined since the beginning of the session. Consultations, 384; vaccinations, 219; and X-rays, 477.

Engineering Relations
Dean Ernest Brown, of the Faculty of Engineering, submitted a memorandum on the problem faced by this faculty in teaching students something about "engineering relations." He reported that fundamental economics and engineering law had long existed as subjects of instruction. Now, an attempt is being made to train engineering undergraduates in general business and organization by steering a middle course between these subjects and the technical side of engineering.

Dean O. F. Martin, of the faculty of medicine, presided.

Carnivorous Plants Subject Of Lecture

Professor Lloyd To Address Meeting Of The Biological Society

This evening at 8:30, Professor F. E. Lloyd, chairman of the Department of Botany and director of the Biological Society on "Carnivorous Plants." The meeting will be held in Room 250 of the Biological Building, and is open to the student body.

Dr. Lloyd will review the work done on carnivorous plants, including his own original research. The lecture will be illustrated with slides which are being shown at the University for the first time, although they were used last summer at the meeting of the British Association.

Carnivorous plants constitute a very rare and interesting group of plants; of the many thousands of plant species there are but 440 which are carnivorous. The rarity of this species of plant has always aroused great speculation among botanists. In his presidential address before the Royal Society of Canada, he reviewed most of the work yet done on these plants.

This address will be the first, Dr. Lloyd has delivered since his return from abroad. Last summer he delivered lectures at most of the centres of learning, both in England and on the continent. He also presided over the Botany section of the British Association. A particular invitation is extended to all students who are interested in Biology to attend this meeting.

To Trace Rise Of Peace River Area

Eva Younge Will Discuss Research In New Communities

Eva Younge, M.A., of the Department of Sociology, will discuss the "Growth of Pioneer Communities in the Peace River County" at the meeting of the Sociological Society in Strathcona Hall tomorrow night at eight o'clock. Miss Younge will illustrate her address with numerous pictures depicting successive stages of the development of the area.

The phenomenal growth of the Peace River Country in Northern Alberta—one of the outposts of the Canadian frontier—has been attracting the attention of the Canadian public for a score of years. The new communities in this area have been recently studied both from the economic and the sociological point of view. Miss Younge has been one of the main contributors to this study and is therefore eminently qualified to discuss the subject.

In her address on Friday night Miss Younge will confine her discussion to those aspects which deal with the growth of trade centres, and of social and economic institutions. She will give some indication also of the extent to which farm families share in the various facilities offered in the new towns and villages.

This is a subject of interest to all students taking Sociology or Economics, and the executive feel that it is a subject of interest to all students who are interested to attend.

To Carol In French

The singing of French songs and Christmas carols will feature today's meeting of the Societe Francaise. The meeting will be held at 4 o'clock in the R.V.C. Common Room. In addition, each year will present a special song, and act it at the same time. These songs, the executive assures us, have in the past enjoyed great popularity and promise to be very interesting for the benefit of those who are not acquainted with the songs, books containing the words will be distributed. The executive extends a cordial invitation to all women students who are interested to attend.

Red Six Swamps "Saints" 10-2 In Scoring Splurge

Frenchmen Unable To Stem Tide As McGill Sets Year's High Mark — Jack McGill Tallies Three While Farmer Gets Two — Lafontaine Defeats Vics 6-5 In Second Game

McGILL went on one of their occasional scoring spurges last night, trouncing the tri-coloured St. Francois team 10-2 and firmly entrenching themselves in first place by their victory.

McGill, Farmer Lead
Jack McGill and Kenny Farmer had a big night at the expense of the Frenchmen in the matter of goals while the whole McGill team generally fattened their averages for the Christmas season. McGill and Farmer moved up in the scoring race with a bound, each getting four points for his evening's work with McGill getting three goals and one assist and Farmer two goals and two assists.

In the second game the luckless Vics once again fell in their attempt to get out of the cellar position, ending up on the short end of a 6-3 score in a high scoring and closely fought match with Lafontaine.

St. Francois Collapses
St. Francois were no match for the Redmen, completely collapsing under the sustained drive put on by McGill in the second and third periods, although they held them to a single tally in the first period. The opening session gave the fans little to enthuse about, both teams playing listless, unable to get going at all. Midway through the second frame things started to happen and once Tommy Robertson put McGill two goals in the lead by sinking Melickjohn's pass after Kenny Farmer had beaten Gagnon for the initial tally in the first period McGill had things all their own way.

They rapped in three more goals before the period ended and before the final whistle blew they had five more to their credit, while the "Saints" managed to avert a whitewash by drilling two shots past McHugh in the last frame.

Hellodore Gagnon's goalkeeping record took somewhat of a beating and Gagnon himself didn't fare any too well at the hands of the Redmen, twice having to stop for minor injuries when he was struck on the face in goal-mouth scrambles. His injuries however didn't impair his work particularly for his support was not too good at any time. McGill found little difficulty in getting in at close range through the Gervais-Raymond defence, and the Frenchmen's goalkeeping was lacking.

McHugh Misses Shutout.
Holly McHugh had a good night in the McGill cage but his chance for a shutout went up in smoke in the middle of the last session when Tobin caught the Red defence off guard and sailed right in with Hills pass to slide a low shot past him. St. Michel dropped McHugh's record a bit further with his late tally which he drilled in through a maze of players after carrying the puck out in front from the corner.

Nelson Crutchfield added three points to his total with a goal and two assists. His goal was the first that he has scored this season, although he now has six assists on record. The ill fortune that hung over Gagnon all night was directly responsible for Crutchfield's counter as the big fellow was forced to circle the net and only pass (continued on page four)

The Christmas Issue

ON TUESDAY next our last issue of the year will appear, and will consist of a special Christmas Issue, containing poems, stories, and special features which may be considered of a Christmas nature, though not necessarily restricted to the latter.

The Daily would welcome, therefore, contributions of any sort. We feel that there should be an abundance of material available among the student body, and that those interested will find it possible to make some contribution to this issue. Variety and interest should be the keynote of all efforts submitted to us.

Any manuscripts may be left in the Daily office, or at the Tuck Shop in the Union, and marked "Christmas Issue" with the name and telephone number of the writer. All such contribution will be given full attention.

"College And The Debutante"

TO THE casual observer it would seem that there are two types of student at our University. Those who take an active interest in a reasonable number of activities and manage to pass their examinations and those who are known as "Par-tials."

Apparently there are many reasons why a student registers as a partial. Some follow certain courses with a definite end in view, others to fill in time until they are old enough to enter some profession, but the class to which we wish to draw attention is composed of those who come to college to attain a certain "social standing." This is apparently the intention of a number of the season's debutantes. College, to them, is a mere forenoon occupation; it provides interesting conversation at the afternoon tea and is the superb answer to the question "What do you do?"

While this practice may be permissible in certain of the private schools of the city it seems out of place at an institute of higher learning. In the first place these students, if we may call them such, are wasting their own time; they should be at home sleeping in order to appear fresh in the evening. They are taking up the time of the professor and the rest of the class. They seem to have a demoralizing effect on the classes which they attend. If one member of a class is disinterested or lazy the inattention tends to spread to others. If those whom we criticize do not consider the waste of their parent's money they should consider the depletion of the funds of the University. The fees have been raised within the last two years, but the students' contribution does not defray the cost of the education; this is met by the Endowment fund.

This applies particularly to women students who are attempting to "come out" while attending college. The sooner it is realized that it is impossible to be a successful, deb and to acquire an academic education at the same time the better for all concerned.

This criticism of "frittering away" valuable time may be applied to many men students in the regular first year. While not in the same category as the partial they are definitely detrimental to the college. These fellows are eliminated by the regular examinations, but a partial may go on forever.

We do not pretend to be condemning social activity, it is a necessary part of education, but we do attempt to point out that it is well nigh impossible to succeed at college and make a business of social activities at the same time.

Reinhold Niebuhr

A SPEAKER well known to student audiences in the United States, and an author of considerable note in his country, Reinhold Niebuhr, is coming to Montreal this coming weekend and is giving a series of speeches and conferences. The subjects which he has chosen appear to us to be of peculiar import, and well chosen in the light of present day conditions.

He is speaking on "The World Outlook, Reaction or Reconstruction?" "What Next — first steps in Social Reconstruction," and other most interesting subjects. What his views are we have yet to see, but we can appreciate the timeliness of the lectures. It is well to hear various views propounded by those who hold definite opinions.

The BOOK SHELF

MORAL MAN AND IMMORAL SOCIETY by Reinhold Niebuhr. Charles Scribner's Sons. $2.00 277 pp.

IN HIS impassioned attempts to get at the truth of his problems, to avoid 'mouthing platitudes' of which he is so contemptuous, Reinhold Niebuhr borders upon the sensational. He is continually dramatic. His shafts are directed on the one hand against the social reformers, who would improve methods of government, consolidate co-ordination of the classes through education; on the other hand against the middle class pacifists who would label conflict as immoral.

The case for justification of conflict is brilliantly if not convincingly put forth. The mind is convinced, but the heart revolts. At the bottom of the social disease is the self interest of man. Education is impotent to control this self-interest. Niebuhr looks to the Russian example to alter the scheme of things.

One is moved if not convinced by Reinhold Niebuhr's impassioned preachings. Whether his beliefs will accomplish anything in the present situation is a matter of conjecture. Certainly one cannot read his book without giving great thought to a novel doctrine.

People Who Write
THEN, of course, there are the people who make money from their writings. Recent reports have been received from various "literary factories" throughout the continent, notably from New York, advising that there really are such people.

It appears that there are countless young circulating libraries springing up throughout the country whose shelves have to be kept replenished weekly with stacks of novelettes and novels of the mystery, gruesome murder, and mushing love-story variety, for the consumption of the good people of the land. To satisfy this need then, high-minded publishers are scouring the land for mute inglorious Lewises, Andersons, and Catheres. For a potential Main Street these gentlemen are prepared to pay the author, whoever he may be, any amount up to $500 for all rights. It is astounding! Some bright spark may wear his very soul out for a year — for three years if he wishes — for $500. Or, he may remain in his grocery store, which might perhaps be more profitable.

It is more usual, of course, for the writer of popular fiction to submit himself to the less arduous bondage of the pulp periodical fiction market. There are some interesting sidelights on the life and activities of the Grub Street practitioner of this proprietor: First and foremost, he throws aside the pincushion for the more commodious white-wash brush. With it goes any artistic potentialities he ever had.

"In order to successfully compete with the highly-specialized fiction market of today it is necessary to make a thorough investigation of the sharply defined requirements of the individual magazines before you write your story. It is also best to decide on the certain specific fiction fields, and to specialize in the production of material to suit the individual requirements of the several magazines in these respective fields. This is what we call 'slanting', and it is absolutely necessary for success at fiction writing today. There is very little chance of selling haphazardly written stories which are produced without any distinct market in view, even if they are exceptionally well done."

Thus writes a veteran critic in the popular fiction world today. What those words portend for the future of literary production we shudder to think. As in learning, as in every mode of life and endeavour, we are become bondslaves of the Great God Standardization. Those are the facts, and there is little we can do about it.

What makes the situation so much more acute is the fact that art, and careful writing is likely to be penalized, while the mass-production, slipshod artisan is more likely to be inordinately highly paid for his rapid-fire work. One particular case in point is that of the recent publication of Miss Katherine Brush's "Red Headed Woman", for the serial rights alone of which The Saturday Evening Post paid the authoress at the rate of $1.00 a word, or $85,000 for the complete novel. Now, with the movie rights, royalties and reprint rights, the authoress's income on that one decidedly second-rate novel is said to be well on the way towards the half-million mark. Shade of Milton!

Marginalia

IT IS A FAR CRY from Mary Queen of Scots and James Joyce but Herbert Gorman bridged the gap in less than a year. His biography of the artist, not only as a young man, will appear shortly, scarcely a year after his life of the "martyred" queen. Gorman was one of the first critics to offer "explanations" of "Ulysses," yet it must be recorded that these interpretations were plausible significant and did not exhibit the characteristic features of the verbose bosh of the Jolas type.

T. S. Eliot was the Charles Eliot Norton Lecturer in Poetry for 1932-33 at Harvard. The lectures were published by the University Press under the title, "The Use of Poetry." In them Eliot deals with the changing function of poetry through the ages as illustrated in the history of the critical approach to poetry in England. By studying these changes he attempts to discover what is permanent and time-proof and above change in poetry. Of the modern critics considered by Eliot are I. A. Richards and his psychological approach and the view point of communism as voiced by Trotsky.

The creator of Sergeant Grischka, Arnold Zweig is represented on the recent list of the Viking Publishing Company with a novel, "De Vriendt Goes Home." The novel is based on the history of the post-war Jewish settling of Palestine with all its strife, partisanship, political and economic complications, and is based specifically on the murder of an anti-Zionist leader, Dr. Hahn, in 1927.

The four novels of Elinor Wylie who died a year ago have been issued in one volume by Alfred A. Knopf under the title, "The Collected Prose" of Elinor Wylie. Each of the novels is prefaced by a critical appreciation mostly from the Van Doran Literary camp.

The Prix Goncourt for 1933 was recently awarded to Andre Malraux for his novel "La Condition Humaine." It was first printed serially in the Nouvelle Revue Francaise, and has since its publication received wide critical acclaim. An English translation is sure to appear shortly.

The publishers of Sinclair Lewis, Doubleday Doran of New York, announce for publication in January his new novel "Work of Art." It will be published simultaneously in several foreign languages but not, it is specifically announced, in German. I suppose this last is because of the sins of his wife, the noted journalist Dorothy Thompson, who is not to the liking of Herr Reichskulturminister Goebbels.

The Post Graduate

The Drys:
PERHAPS no question of recent years has aroused more discussion, vicious abuse on the one hand, solemn and trite moralizing on the other, than that peculiar American institution, prohibition. Nothing could have been more soundly cursed, for this thing has stirred the souls of a long line of indignant which starts with the farm hand who misses his mug of beer, and ends with the philosopher lamenting the loss of his liberty. The supporters of the opposition form a much more consistent group, and a biography of John Smith—"Baptist and insurance agent; leader of our 'Young Men's Advanced Thinkers Group; once made 350 on the YMCA bowling alleys"—would be more or less typical.

The position, purpose and plans of the Drys have recently been presented by Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, president of the W.C.T.U. in an article "What The Drys Will Do Next," which appeared in a recent copy of Liberty. One forces one's eyes to leave the accompanying picture of the benignly smiling Mrs. Smith, and gets on with her defence. Such she soon convinces one it is to be, for the Drys' business is clearly to protect the home and the mother, to which end she conjures up a vision of starving children, walling wives and intoxicated husbands.

She states, "Alcohol is a deadly narcotic, habit-forming drug, a social poison, transmitting its deadliest effects from one generation to another," and further, "The basic fact that alcohol is a protoplasmic poison, a social destroyer, and a degenerator of the soul remains and must be dealt with." Finally, in effect, if you men will not leave it alone for the sake of us wives and children, think of yourselves—"Nor can any government prevent the enforcement of the Divine prohibition that no drunkard shall inherit the Kingdom of Heaven."

Great Gad! Is Mrs. Smith to militate even there?

As to how to do what she wants the lady calls in the old hope-education. Children are to be shown photographs of the awful effects of this deadly drug on the stomach—the awful truth, "before and after." The effectiveness of this method is questionable. True it is that the two pictures are much alike, and the differences, though exaggerated in violent colour, soon forgotten. But the psychological effect of seeing for the first time one's intestine is a considerable one; no child could ever quite get over it.

The Wets:
ONE FINDS, however, amid the motley crew on the other side of the fence at least one group very much more worthy of consideration. This is an intelligent and decent set which argues that prohibition is a gross infringement of the rights of the individual. It has had able spokesmen, and is the more admirable for contrast with the finger-wagging effgies of the opposition.

But just why the legal prevention of the use of liquor infringes personal rights is a point worthy of analysis. Eating too many chocolates may in rare cases lead to physical disorders, yet the most severe Dry has no objection to candy. Quite commonly the use of dope ends tragically, and even the most confirmed Wet would find nothing objectionable in the legislation with regard to narcotics. And somewhere between these two fits the alcohol business, rather more severe in its consequences than candy, but considerably less so than say morphine.

What, then, to the liberty-loving Wet makes permissible the control of dope, and why doesn't it justify the control of liquor? Intrinsically the two differ only in degree of the severity of the results, and for the convenience of society a line has to be drawn. As is usual in such cases the exact position of the line and not its existence is in dispute, and it so happens that in the United States alcohol lies somewhere in the mythical area in question.

In this light the "gross infringement" story loses its support; one only wonders why such considerations have not appealed to some of its more intelligent propagators. Perhaps they have; and perhaps the said propagators have realized that philosophy of this sort is poor stuff with which to stave off a shouting sentimental mob, motivated by the conviction that a glass of beer will cause a man to sell his soul, neglect his children, beat his wife and become an Atheist.

Cagers Lose To N.D.G. By Close Score

Lewin Scores Eight Points For Redmen In 20-18 Loss

SECONDS DRUBBED BY COUNT OF 20-15

ONLY FIVE of Coach Van Wagner's team of regulars were present for their exhibition game with Ken Grant's smart N.D.G. outfit, the Intercollegiate coming out of the affray at the wrong end of a close 20-18 count. The Seconds took a drubbing at the hands of the N.D.G. seconds, drooping the colours to the tune of 20-15. A condition which hindered play in no small measure was the slipperiness of the floor, and the Redmen were at sea for the first ten minutes or so.

Lewin Gets Eight
Lewin, Small, and Bowes were the pick of the Redmen combining to haffle the westerners' defence on many occasions. Lewin was high scorer for the Redmen sinking the sphere for eight points. Bowes, Small, Silverman and Ross, each scored two points, and in the last part of the affray Wilson of the Intermediates was put on and scored two points to bring the total up to 18.

Buster Allan was outstanding for the Community Centre men netting eight points, while Rudy Felvus and Mills were powerful factors in their victory both offensively and defensively, each accounting for four points. Madden countered for a basket and Carson and Sammy Morrison each countered on penalty shots to bring the score up to 20.

Slow Start
Play was slow in getting started and the Redmen found it hard going on the slippery floor. N.D.G. got going first and kept giving the Redmen's defence lots to worry about. Play waxed rough towards the end of the period, but Silverman and Ross returned all that came their way. Half time score stood at 10-7 in favour of the westerners.

The second half of the game featured a scoring spree for the Redmen when they made things look pretty black for the opposition until the situation was reversed and the N.D.G. quintet ran riot and tallied several points before the Redmen could do much in the way of preventing them. The Redmen then pulled up their socks and held on tight. The last five minutes of play saw Silverman chucked for four personal fouls.

Seconds Lose
The seconds' tussle was a pretty one-sided affair most of the time going the Redmen's way for the first half of the game, half time score being 8-2. Lewins was best for McGill, and Chapman for the N.D.G. quintet. McGill maintained their advantage well on to the half way point of the second half, then the westerners awoke from their lethargy and ran up eleven straight points to sweep away into the lead 13-11. The rest of the game was fast with the Redmen trying their utmost to stem the tide, but their luck at the basket was none too good, and the final score was registered as 20-15 in the hole.

Arts Freshettes In 55-8 Victory Over M. S. P. E. Cagers

M.S.P.E.'s basketball team could do nothing against the skillful play of the Arts freshettes yesterday when the Physical Eds were downed 55-8. The feature of the game was the sniping of Beatrice Taylor who accounted for no less than 36 of the freshette's 55 points. Irene Crutchlow and Lorraine Strachan accounted for the rest of the scoring gaining 10 and 9 points respectively. Helen Cremin and Barbara McPherson divided the honours for the losers netting 4 points each.

Arts II nosed out Arts III by a single point after a closely contested struggle which brought out some fine basketball tactics, final score being 28-27. Gertrude Cooke scored 12 of the Sophomores' points, while Margaret Miller led the scorers for the Arts III cause, netting 15 points.

Redmen Tackle Eli Puckmen Tomorrow Evening At Forum

Coach Bobby Bell Plans Same Line-Up As Last Night

BIG CROWD EXPECTED

FOLLOWING last night's win over St. Francois, Dr. Bobby Bell announced that he would start the same team against Yale as took part in last night's game. The match last night was the Redmen's last Senior Group appearance until Jan. 10 but their fattened averages and their long lead should serve to tide them over the holiday lay-off quite handsly.

With the Yale game but a day away the Athletic Office is being swamped with requests for tickets and only a few box seats are left. Promenade seats are still available, along with amphitheatre seats but the supply is being taken up fast and it is probable that all available tickets will be gone well before game time.

Yale Here Tomorrow
Yale, fresh from a 7-3 win over a starry St. Nicholas Club six, will arrive in town tomorrow morning. The Elis will not be in town long as they continue their Canadian jaunt right after their game with the Redmen, enroute for Toronto where they meet Varsity on Saturday night.

The New Haven collegians are bringing a powerful squad of fifteen men along with them and fully expect to give McGill a real run. Although they have played but two real games so far, Coach Holcomb Yorke's charges are said to be in excellent physical condition following their rigorous pre-season work under the direction of Bob Kipphut, swimming coach. In their game with St. Nick's they surprised their followers with an aggressive brand of play which they maintained throughout the whole game and which finally earned them the verdict against the New York city club which boasts such stars as Lee Pruyn, last year with Harvard, Frank Farrell, for three years an outstanding Eli goalie and Arthur Brant, former Varsity and Princeton player.

Snyder in Goals
Coach Yorke will probably start Snyder in goal, Herrick and Wilmerding on defence and Gilligan, Mills and Colby on the front line. Mills and Colby have been working effectively in practice and in the early games and Coach Yorke considers them real scoring aces.

Science Freshmen Drop Close Game To Medico Juniors

SCIENCE I took it on the chin yesterday losing to the third year Sawbones in their class basketball tilt in a grueling contest that was decided only in the closing moments of the game. Final score stood at 17-14. The pick of the winners were Donohue and Smith, while Wigdor did well for the Science men garnering eight points.

The third year Engineers bowed to Arts IV by the narrow margin of 21-19. The Artists were far superior in the first half piling up a score of 14-3. The Plumbers, however, made a splendid rally in the final session which nearly proved fatal to the Arts cause. Sharkey who scored nine, and Manion, six, were best for the winners, the former's free shot clinching the game for his mates. Mace, who tallied nine, and MacLeod, six, played well for the Engineers. Play was fast throughout.

Plumbers Swamp Commerce
The third game resulted in Engineering II swamping Commerce I by the count of 46-3. The businessmen were unable to cope with the brand of basketball handed out by the well organized Plumbers. Newell who scored 23 points and McGregor who scored nineteen were the standouts for the Plumbers.

Med. III (17)—Hutchinson, Rubin, Donohue (4), Aycock, Shuster (3), Battle (2), Oker (2), Feltner (2), Smith (4).

Poloists Meet Irish Team In Final Tilt

Prepare For Deciding Tilt With Varsity In Toronto

COLUMBUS VS. SECONDS

MCGILL'S two water polo squads, who this season have shown just about the best form of any such squads for several years past, will be all out tonight to wind up their local season in auspicious fashion. The seniors, heading for their final engagement of the intercollegiate series on Saturday night at Toronto, will take on the Columbus firsts, a team which has succeeded in subduing them on former occasions by very narrow margins, while the junior squad hooks up with the Irish seconds, practically the same aggregation which they trimmed last Saturday evening in an exhibition affray. Play starts at 8.30 at the Columbus tank.

Already well attuned for fast and furious contention for the intercollegiate title, the Red natators will tonight be prepared to revenge themselves for past defeats at the hands of the Casey. Exceptionally rigid training periods have enabled them to reach the peak of water polo form and this engagement will provide a final polishing before the seniors make the jaunt to the Queen City tomorrow.

Freeman Absentee
The regular city league roster will prevail for both conflicts. Chuck Wayland will take his usual position between the pipes as netminder for the Redmen. The smart checking combination of Skinner and Shragovitch will be back in action prepared to stem the Irish sharpshooters, while Capt. Phil French will hold down half position. Phil has developed a remarkable long shot of late evidence of which was forthcoming last Saturday in the intercollegiate scuffle. On two occasions he had the Varsity goalie completely fooled by his accurate sniping from centre tank, although one of these tallies was not allowed by the referee. Stein, McLean and Shapiro will comprise the forward line. Freeman is a probable absentee from tonight's affair due to the press of other activities, but his presence will be well in evidence for Saturday's important engagement.

The junior rumpus will probably provide one of those brisk encounters which has characterized most of the tilts in which the Red seconds have participated this season. Bourne will be back to swim at centre aided by Elliot and McLure as forwards. Silverstone will carry out the half duties with the close-checking duo of Perry and Smyth completing an almost impenetrable bulwark. Carlisle Gilmour will defend the nets.

CLASS HOCKEY
There will be an important meeting of the class hockey managers today at 5 p.m. in the Union.

Eng. III (19)—Mace (9), Macleod (6) Smyth (2), Christie (2), Auld, Norris, Kimpton.

Eng. II (46)—McGregor (19), Henry Mason, Newell (23) Benson (2), Brundage, Wake (2), Dobson.

Com. I (8)—Craig (1), Abrams (2), Herring, Brown, Hanson, Gilmour.

Afficulties Seen In Contemporary Literature Course

red years ago Robert Pollock, poet, who wrote the "Course of Time," was widely read in his day. Today nobody has ever heard of him.

Another method of selecting authors, continued Professor Latham, would be to follow the intellectual elite's opinion. But this also is unsatisfactory. "In the nineties, Mrs. Humphrey Ward was the high brow of her time—it was considered intellectual exercise to read her." But she is no longer appreciated. About 1900 Mr. Phillips was in the same class. It was a social duty to praise him. Today he is unknown. Meredith had also a high brow audience, but after his death he lost his popularity, although he has to some extent recovered it today.

The reason for this is that intellectual opinion is largely a matter of fashion and exclusiveness. People read their works in the same manner as they select hats.

Now, stated Dr. Latham, what constitutes a "best seller?" Many would like to know the answer to this. "The Story of Philosophy" by Will Durant and "Anthony Adverse" by Allen are both unusual best sellers. This is often largely a matter of chance, as it may have a certain momentary appeal, for various reasons. Yet some of these most-talked-of books die a certain death soon after. Is there any way of knowing a good book? Are there any permanent principles of taste?

Now what can be done for an academic study of contemporary literature? The contemporary scene is too confused and uncertain for formal academic study, but yet the teacher and student must still keep in touch with contemporary work.

In conclusion Professor Latham stated that the University can give the student a sense of background and some knowledge of literary tradition. This is the main function of academic literature. But this must not be done in entire unconsciousness of one's own time.

Red Six Swamps "Saints" 10-2 In Scoring Spurge

ed the rubber out to the goal blindly. As the puck was about to pass the pipe Gagnon reached for it with his stick and in doing so pulled it into his cage. Tommy Robertson was another to break into the scoring for the first time when he took Melklejohn's pass after a sustained attack on the French elated had been turned aside, and tallied.

Two Goals Called

Two goals were called back, McGill's first goal of the night going for naught when an offside spoiled Gordie Melklejohn's try while interference in front of the McGill net upset St. Francois' third score.

Both of Bobby Bell's front lines found the going fairly easy. McGill, Crutchfield and Shaughnessy accounted for five goals while Farmer, Farquharson and Robertson were good for four. Gordie Melklejohn upheld the back division in the matter of points with a goal and two assists. St. Francois, always regarded as a fast team found themselves out-skated throughout. McGill, Crutchfield and Farmer cut loose on occasions with speed to burn while the McGill back-checking prevented Tobin, Watson and Hills from getting very far. Tobin and Hills played good hockey for the "Saints" but the combination efforts of the French team were ineffective, and failed to penetrate Red territory very deeply.

Unlike previous clashes between these two teams the penalties were not heavy. No serious outbursts occurred and only eight rests were handed out. The line-up:

McGill—McHugh, goal; Melklejohn, Hall, defence; Farquharson, centre; Robertson, Farmer, wings; Crutchfield, McGill, Elie, Shaughnessy, Lamb.

St. Francois—Gagnon, goal; Germain, Raymond, defence; Hills, centre; Watson, Tobin, wings; Thibault, Easton, St. Michel, Bourgoin, Beauchamp, Belhumeur.

SUMMARY First Period

1—McGill, Farmer (Farquharson) 16:15
Penalty: McGill.

Second Period

1—McGill, Robertson (Melklejohn) 9:31
2—McGill, Farmer (Farquharson) 9:35

Law 35, will uphold the negative side for McGill. Both these men are known and tried debaters, having each taken part in numerous intercollegiate debates and Mock Parliaments.

President Urges Support

Wilson Becket, President of the Debating Union, pointed out the necessity of buying tickets for the debate as soon as possible as they are going quickly and there is only a limited quantity. A large and capacity crowd is expected in view of the rapid sale of tickets.

Economic nationalism is one of the commoner phrases of the day and nearly every country of the world has to a greater or less extent been practicing it. This policy of economic self-sufficiency, exhibited by tariffs, bounties, subsidies, quotas, embargoes, and exchange restrictions, has been claimed by many to be the cause of the present economic crisis and the main hindrance to recovery. The subject is thus one that is of international importance and interest to all students of economics and world affairs.

The debate will be held in Tudor Hall on Thursday evening, December 21st. The judges have not as yet been announced.

between the chamber music and the symphonies. These were written for various combinations of instruments and in various forms, some being made up of movements in dance forms and others, as in the case of the serenade for string orchestra known as Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, in much the same form and the same proportions as the later symphonies. Many of these works were written for performance in the open air and were in lighter vein.

Chemical Society Heard Speech On Valence Yesterday that they are mere graphical representations; they are formed from preconceived ideas of what the atoms should be, and gradually altered to suit the results of new experiments.

Since the last few years, a new theory, built by Hultier and London, is treated from an entirely different point of view. Results from band spectroscopic experiments are studied, a few simple assumptions made, and deductions obtained from them. It is very rough as yet, and very complicated. Its fundamental basis is that the composition of a molecule depends on the relative distances between the individual atoms. Band spectra show that the energy possessed by a molecule is a function of these distances, and the relation is such that the energy is a minimum at two points. Hence these points give two possible compositions of molecule, and a certain amount of surplus energy will be required to change from one composition to the other.

McGill Boxers Win At MacDonald Fights

Promising material for the intercollegiate boxing and wrestling teams was seen last night at the annual MacDonald College Smoker. Both McGill boxers were successful in defeating their opponents, McLennan defeating Cooper and Swift defeating Waterfield. Cooper shows promise. The second fight was also keenly contested hard blows being exchanged with gusto. Bert Light fought against Swales, boxing coach at MacDonald, and Livermore.

Cook def. Lanahan and Way def. Innis all of St. Anne's. Jankov and Lasarovitch, two 145 lb. wrestlers, showed up well enough to be considered as intercollegiate talent, the latter winning by one fall. In the other wrestling attractions Caldwell lost to Gibber, and Webb defeated Chaisson. The first of these last two was exciting to watch, although the fighters lacked experience. Payton, a 165 lb. wrestler who was in the inter-collegiate semi-final last year, is the manager and coach of the St. Anne's wrestlers.

will be of particular import to those taking the course on the "Community" as the study of the community, whether urban or rural, is one of the main interests in Sociology.

"Communities in the making" are worthy objects of research because they are less complex than old ones, and therefore easier to analyze. Another advantage is that they change rapidly, so that one may observe changes while they are actually taking place. The processes which require one or more generations in older communities may in new areas be completed in a few decades, or sometimes
